

Sources and Uses of Personal Information

In this document, references to 'we', or 'us' means all or any Gama Aviation Plc group entity, as the context requires. Whenever you visit the Gama Aviation website, or communicate with us, use the services of any of our Business Units or otherwise engage with us, we collect different types of personal data. We may also obtain personal data from other sources or create some personal data ourselves.

We would like to assure you that Gama Aviation cannot identify you personally simply as a user of its website unless you are logged in to any online account that may be set up with us. Except if we need to conduct a cyber security incident investigation, will have no need and will not try to identify you from any online identifiers, such as your IP address.

The nature of the relationship we have with you will dictate what, if any, personal data we are likely to collect about you and why we will want to use it. This document sets out the types of personal data that may be collected by a Gama Aviation group entity (or on its or their behalf) when acting as the responsible Data Controller entity, and for this purpose, the term 'Data Controller' is a party that determines the purposes for which and how personal data is processed. Occasionally, personal data will be received from other sources, such as from your employer, other third parties, or from information that is made publicly available online or from other publicly available online records, such as those details made available on the UK Companies House website.

Below is some further information about the sources of personal information that may be obtained / accessed by an entity in the Gama Aviation Plc group of companies, information on what personal information collected by the Gama aviation group is used for, and the legal basis for use.

Uses of your personal information

Gama Aviation group entities may process your personal data for many different purposes when you visit the Gama Aviation website, use or enquire about Gama Aviation group services, purchase goods (including aircraft parts) or otherwise communicate or engage with us.

The law requires that we must always have a permitted reason or justification (called a “lawful basis”) for processing your personal data. You can read more about the reasons for processing personal data and the lawful bases on which we rely for such processing, in the table below.

For some processing activities, we consider that more than one lawful basis may be relevant, depending on the circumstances. The applicable purpose will also vary according to which Gama Aviation entity is the ‘controller’ of personal data. If the stated basis for use of personal information is shown as “contract”, this means that a Gama Aviation entity or entities providing information or goods and/or services to you is using personal data in order to perform a contract with you, or to take steps at your request prior to entering a contract with you. Where the stated use basis is ‘legal obligation’, this means that personal information is collected in order to comply with a legal obligation to which the Gama Aviation entity or entities concerned is/are subject. Where the stated use basis is our ‘legitimate interests’, this means that the relevant Gama Aviation entity or entities consider(s) to have a fair, proportionate and overriding lawful business reason to use your details. This will occur primarily where, by using the information collected, we learn about you or develop our relationship with you, to enable us to work with you more closely and more efficiently, or to make sound business decisions involving or affecting you.

Personal information collected may be converted into statistical or aggregated form, or we may anonymise it, to protect your privacy, or so that you are not identified or identifiable from it. Anonymised data cannot be linked back to you. We may use it to conduct analysis, including to produce statistical research and reports to develop and/or to improve our services.

Personal data will not be sold or licensed outside the Gama Aviation Plc group of companies for marketing purposes.

How we keep your personal information secure

The Gama Aviation group of companies takes the security of data held by it very seriously and we take such steps as are required by applicable data protection laws) to protect personal data from unlawful or unauthorised processing and accidental loss, destruction, or damage. Gama Aviation personnel and third-party services providers who have access to confidential information (including personal information) are subject to confidentiality obligations. Please be aware, however, that the transmission of information via the internet is not completely secure. We will do our best to protect your personal data, but we cannot guarantee the security of data transmitted to us over e-mail and any transmission is at the sender's risk. Once received, we will use strict procedures and security features to try to prevent unauthorised access. You are responsible for keeping any passwords you use to access Gama Aviation's platforms secure.

Disclosure of your personal information

Within the Gama Aviation Plc group of companies

The Gama Aviation group of companies has operations in various locations around the world. A Gama Aviation entity that receives and is responsible for your personal data as the Data Controller may need to share that data with other companies in the group for one or more of the following purposes:

- in connection with customer relationship management. For example, if you are a customer or prospective customer, we may add your personal data to a client contact database. A list of the countries where Gama Aviation group companies operate can be found here.
- where support and functions are provided by other companies in the group, such as in relation to our website hosting and operation, IT systems and support and maintenance, marketing support, audit, governance, and compliance and legal; all of which functions are performed wholly or primarily in the United Kingdom.
- to meet customer needs, where different functions operate from different locations.
- for authorisations/approvals with relevant management-level decision makers;
- for reporting purposes; and/or
- where systems are shared across different functions in different group companies; such as aircraft maintenance workflow systems in one operating company and group level accounting and billing functions.

Commented [LM1]: Please add here a hyperlink to the list of companies

As between companies in the Gama Aviation group, access to personal information is limited and is given on a 'need to know' basis, solely as required for job functions and roles (for example, to carry out functions in Finance department).

Where any companies in the Gama Aviation group process personal data on behalf of the company that is the original recipient (as a data processor), care is taken to ensure that they have the appropriate security standards in place to protect the data. A formal contract imposing appropriate security obligations and standards will be entered into and, if personal data is to be transferred to a Gama Aviation group company that is outside the EEA, appropriate safeguards will be put in place to ensure the security of the transferred data.

Outside the Gama Aviation Plc group of companies

On occasion, it may be necessary to ask third party service providers to carry out certain business functions on our behalf. These parties will process personal data on our behalf (as data processors). Personal data sent to these parties will be to enable them to perform their contracted functions. Prior to disclosure of personal data to third parties, we will ensure that they have appropriate security procedures and standards in place so that personal data is secure and a formal contract with them will require adherence to appropriate security standards. Third-party service providers could include IT support, back up and server hosting providers.

Sometimes, we will need to disclose personal data to independent third parties who will receive it as other controllers of the personal data received, and examples of these are:

- the providers of fraud or other checking services and/or professional advisors such as external law firms;
- in the event of any dealings with an entity in the Gama Aviation group of companies or all or part of its business, or in the event of a potential acquisition of a third-party entity or its business, it may be necessary to disclose or transfer personal data to the prospective seller, buyer or other third party involved in the potential transaction (and their professional advisors); and
- it may be necessary to disclose personal data to comply with a legal obligation, or to enforce rights under a contract, or to protect the rights, property or safety of our employees, customers or others.

Examples of the categories of third-party recipients with whom we are likely to share your personal data include:

- In relation to customers of aircraft management services or charter customers, it may be necessary to disclose personal data to providers of aircraft ground handling services, hotels, rental car companies and/or other ground transportation / travel companies, where you have asked us to arrange such services on your behalf.
- IT support, website and data hosting providers and administrators assisting with operation of the Gama Aviation Plc website, mobile apps, data rooms set up in connection with sale or acquisition transactions, document and workflow management systems and other systems and applications.
- marketing service providers.
- analytics, search engine providers and survey providers who help collate customer feedback.
- banks and payment processors in relation to payments made to or by Gama Aviation.
- third party debt recovery service providers where we need to recover sums owed.

- consultants and professional advisors including legal advisors, accountants, or auditors.
- courts, court-appointed persons/entities, liquidators.
- business partners and joint ventures.
- insurance brokers and/or insurers.
- governmental departments, statutory and regulatory bodies including the Information Commissioner's Office, the police and Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs and Border Forces.

Transfer of personal information

Data that is collected by a company in the Gama Aviation group may be transferred to, and stored at, a recipient situated outside the European Economic Area ("EEA"), whose staff may also process the received data at a location outside the EEA and who may work for a Gama Aviation company in the location, or for a service provider or supplier of goods. All reasonable steps will be taken to ensure that the data transferred is treated securely and in accordance with the Gama Aviation privacy policy and applicable law.

If any of the processing activities require personal data to be transferred outside the EEA, we will make that transfer only if:

- the country to which the personal data is to be transferred has laws that are to ensure an adequate level of protection for personal data.
- the recipient party or recipient country is subject to an approved certification mechanism or code of conduct with binding and enforceable commitments, that constitute 'appropriate safeguards' for personal data*.
- we have put in place appropriate safeguards to protect your personal data, such as an appropriate approved form of contract with the recipient which incorporates specific provisions as directed by the European Commission.
- the transfer is necessary for one of the reasons specified in data protection legislation; or
- you explicitly consent to the transfer.

 From the end of the implementation period, data transfers from the UK to the EU/EEA as well as other countries outside of the EEA fall under the requirements of the UK GDPR, which prohibits transfers of personal data outside of the UK (and to international organisations) unless an appropriate transfer mechanism is in place, in an equivalent manner to the way in which the EU GDPR prohibits transfers of personal data outside of the EEA (and to international organisations).*

The UK continues to recognise the EEA as adequate under the UK GDPR on a transitional basis, and The EU Commission announced on 28 June 2021 that adequacy decisions for the UK have been approved.

However, the Data Protection, Privacy and Electronic Communications (Amendments etc) (EU Exit) Regulations 2020, SI 2020/1586 expressly provide that the United States Privacy Shield will not be valid under the UK GDPR. As of August 2021, the UK has not adopted an adequacy decision for the United States or for the EU-U.S. Privacy Shield Framework. For the time being, therefore, the use of 'appropriate safeguards' (including the use of Standard Contractual Clauses) will require case by case assessments (Facebook Ireland and Schrems).

Personal data shared between Gama Aviation Plc group companies will be subject to the contractual obligations imposed by EU standard contract clauses. A copy of the current European Commission approved standard contractual clauses are available here.

If you would like to see a copy of any of the other relevant safeguards used by us to protect the transfer of your personal data, please contact dpo@gamaaviation.com.

How long we keep your personal information

Personal data will be retained throughout the period of your relationship with the Gama Aviation Plc group and, after that period ends, for as long as is necessary in connection with both our and your legal rights and obligations. Some types of personal data will therefore be retained for longer than others, but we will retain personal data for a limited period of time. The length of this period will depend on a number of factors, including:

- any laws or regulations that are required to be complied with;
- if there is a legal or other type of dispute;
- the type of information held; and
- if a customer or a regulatory authority requires us to keep personal data for a valid reason.

How we use cookies

We use cookies for certain areas of our website. Please see the Gama Aviation Cookie Policy here.

Your Rights

If a Gama Aviation Plc group company uses personal data as a Data Controller and UK or European Union law applies to that use, please see the section below.

You have certain legal rights, which are summarised in the table below, in relation to any personal data held by Gama Aviation group entities about you. Your ability to exercise these rights will naturally be limited where we incidentally use limited business-related personal data in business records and business communications which we need to retain.

Where our processing of your personal data is based on your consent, you have the right to withdraw your consent at any time. If you do decide to withdraw your consent, we will stop processing your personal data for that purpose, unless there is another lawful basis we can rely on – in which case, we will let you know. Your withdrawal of your consent won't impact any of our processing up to that point.

Where our processing of your personal data is necessary for our legitimate interests, you can object to this processing at any time. If you do this, we will need to show either a compelling reason why our processing should continue, which overrides your interests, rights, and freedoms or that the processing is necessary for us to establish, exercise or defend a legal claim.

You can exercise these rights at any time by contacting us at dpo@gamaaviation.com.

Your right	What does it mean?	Limitations and conditions of your right
Right of access	Subject to certain conditions, you are entitled to have access to your personal data (this is generally known as submitting a “data subject access request”).	Where possible, specify the type of information you would like to see, to ensure that disclosure by us is meeting expectations. We need to be able to verify the identity of who we are dealing with. Your request may not impact the rights and freedoms of other people, e.g. privacy and confidentiality rights of other individuals. Other exemptions may apply, dependent on the information and context.
Right to data portability	Subject to certain conditions, you are entitled to receive the personal data which you have provided to us and which is processed by us by automated means, in a structured, commonly-used machine readable format.	If you exercise this right, you should specify the type of information you would like to receive (and where we should send it) where possible, to ensure that our disclosure is meeting expectations.

		This right applies only where the processing is based on your consent or on our contract with you and when the processing is carried out by automated means (i.e. not for paper records). It covers only the personal data that has been provided to us by you.
Rights in relation to inaccurate personal or incomplete data	You may challenge the accuracy or completeness of your personal data and have it corrected or completed, as applicable. You have a responsibility to help us to keep your personal information accurate and up to date. We encourage you to notify us of any changes regarding your personal data as soon as they become apparent, including changes to your contact details.	This right only applies to your own personal data. When exercising this right, please be as specific as possible.
Right to object to or restrict our data processing	Subject to certain conditions, you have the right to object to or ask us to restrict the processing of your personal data.	As stated above, this right applies where our processing of your personal data is necessary for our legitimate interests. You can also object to our processing of your personal data for direct marketing purposes.

Right to erasure	Subject to certain conditions, you are entitled to have your personal data erased (also known as the “ right to be forgotten ”), e.g., where your personal data is no longer needed for the purposes, it was collected for, or where the relevant processing is unlawful.	We may not be in a position to erase your personal data, if for example, we need it to (i) comply with a legal obligation, or (ii) exercise or defend legal claims.
Right to withdrawal of consent	As stated above, where our processing of your personal data is based on your specific consent, you have the right to withdraw that consent at any time.	If you withdraw your consent, this will take effect in relation to future processing only.

If any of the personal information provided to a company in the Gama Aviation Plc group changes, or you discover that something is incorrect (e.g. your contact details) please inform us without delay by contacting your local customer service representative usual relationship manager or our Data Protection Officer on dpo@gamaaviation.com.

If you have any concerns about how we process personal data, please send an email with the details of your concerns to dpo@gamaaviation.com, to enable us to try to resolve it. You are also entitled to lodge a complaint with the data protection supervisory authority in your country of residence or the country in which an alleged infringement of data protection law has occurred, e.g., with the Information Commissioner’s Office of the UK.

If a Gama Aviation Plc group company uses personal data and UK or European Union law does not apply to that use (such as where you are in the US and contract with us in the US), you may have rights that differ from the rights set out above.
